

Seafarer to E-farer

Dr. Cleopatra Doumbia-Henry
President, World Maritime University

Seafarer to e-farer

- Living in exponentially changing times, with disruptive innovations
- Importance of holistic stakeholder engagement
- Collaboration rather than competition
- Technology vis-à-vis labour and socio-political dynamic
- Doing not only what is possible, but primarily what is right
- Persistence of human element issues whether seafarer or e-farer
- Skills for today's seafarer and tomorrow's e-farer
- Stewardship of the planet

Seafarer to e-farer

- IAMU Global Maritime Professional (GMP) description

An individual who is a professional in the maritime industry and who is equipped with all the relevant technical competencies relevant to their specific operational role in the industry and as required by international requirements, with high level academic skills including logical and critical thinking and who – in addition to their technical competency – exhibits a high level of professionalism and ethical behaviour, human relations skills, emotional intelligence and multicultural/diversity awareness and sensitivity. Such an individual exhibits significant leadership skill and is able to optimally work with teams and also take personal initiative. They additionally exhibit a high sense of environmental consciousness and the need for sustainable practices and have an excellent grasp of contemporary issues affecting the maritime industry.

- Identification of training gaps – from seafarer to e-farer
- WMU's role by mandate and history